FTA's with USA still not moving

Progress on the passage of the Korea, Panama & Columbia FTA's with the USA remain bogged down and media reports out of the US differ as to who needs to act.

Obama, not Congress, must act on trade agreements.

Congress can't do anything on free trade agreements "right now," because the President has yet to send the agreements to Congress for final approval, despite receiving recommendations on the agreements from Congress on July 7.

If the administration continues to sit on these trade agreements, as it has since President Obama took office more than two and a half years ago, then Congress will be left in the "do nothing" position on free trade agreements, having never been afforded the opportunity by the Obama administration to ratify the pacts that will expand U.S. trade opportunities abroad and create more jobs at home.

Not only is this roadblock hindering job creation, it's also causing U.S. farmers, ranchers and food processors continual loss of global market share to our competitors, such as the European Union, Canada and Australia. (The Hill, 8/18)

White House pushes Congress to prioritize passing free trade deals

President Obama is vowing to provide a weekly list of new bills he wants Congress to consider, including a payroll tax cut and an extension of federal emergency unemployment benefits, while pressure rises to complete work on the long-delayed trade deals with Colombia, South Korea and Panama. "Over the coming weeks, I'm going to be putting out more proposals, week by week, that will help businesses hire and put people back to work," Obama said during a Thursday speech in Michigan.

The Obama administration made changes to all three agreements and both parties have brokered back and forth on other items such as the White House demand to pass Trade Adjustment Assistance (TAA) along with all three accords. Despite the sense of urgency from all sides [...] The House is only expected to be in session for 11 days in September and the Senate for 14, another reason why the trade deals may have to wait another month or two. ### Ambassador Marantis Discusses TPP, APEC, and ASEAN Integration in Indonesia with Asia-Pacific Trade Ministers

On Thursday and Friday, August 11 and 12, Deputy United States Trade Representative Demetrios Marantis traveled to Manado, Indonesia to advance U.S. trade objectives in the Asia-Pacific during the annual meeting of the trade ministers of the 10 members of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN). Taken together, ASEAN is the 4th largest trading partner of the United States, with total two-way trade in 2010 approaching $178 billion.

Ambassador Marantis began his visit a meeting with the ASEAN trade ministers to take stock of progress on initiatives under the 2011 Trade and Investment (TIFA) work plan, including trade facilitation, trade finance, trade and environment, and standards. They also discussed proposals for the work in 2012, including topics such as health care services and cloud computing, as well as plans to step up our government-to-business dialogue.

Ambassador Marantis also held bilateral meetings with the trade ministers of Australia, New Zealand, Malaysia, Singapore, and Brunei Darussalam to discuss plans for the Trans-Pacific Partnership round in Chicago next month and to coordinate on how to achieve the goals the United States has set for APEC this year. In addition, he met bilaterally with Korea, Philippines, Cambodia, and Indonesia to discuss bilateral issues and APEC goals.

Lawmakers Ask Obama to Refrain From Including Biologics in TPP Talks

Rep. Henry Waxman (D-Calif.) and six other House Democrats Aug. 4 sent a letter to President Obama recommending that the United States refrain from negotiating any provisions related to exclusivity for biosimilar medicines in the ongoing Trans-Pacific Partnership (TPP) talks.

Biosimilar medicines are envisioned as cheaper, follow-on or generic versions of expensive biotechnology drugs, commonly referred to as biologics. The lawmakers expressed concerns that having a 12-year biologics exclusivity provision in the TPP would thwart the ability of Congress to trim that exclusivity to seven years "without running afoul of U.S. trade obligations."

House Ways and Means Subcommittee on Trade ranking member Jim McDermott (D-Wash.), Subcommittee on Health ranking member Pete Stark (D-Calif.), and Appropriations Committee member Rosa DeLauro (D-Conn.) were among the signatories to the letter.

The seventh round of negotiations concluded in Vietnam in June. According to the Office of the U.S. Trade Representative, which is negotiating the deal, the TPP members have set a goal of reaching the outlines of an agreement by the Asia-Pacific Economic Cooperation leaders summit in Honolulu in November. ## U.S. Consular Officer to visit Wellington

Report of Birth Abroad and Passport Interviews

Mr. Dana Deree, the United States Consul in New Zealand, will be in Wellington on Friday, September 23rd from 8.30am – 4.00pm, to accept Passport and Consular Report of Birth Abroad applications from American Citizens who would normally need to apply in person at the Consulate General in Auckland: e.g. Applications for minors, and first adult passports.

The interviews will take place in Wellington at:

U.S. Embassy Auditorium

29 Fitzherbert Terrace

Thorndon, Wellington

To meet security requirements an appointment is essential. If you wish to make an appointment, please telephone the Consulate General in Auckland on 09 303-2724 ext: 2800, 2842, 2848, 2856, or email us at aucklandoutreach@state.gov

Over NZ$90,000 raised for Christchurch in Vermont

Over NZ$90,000 was raised for Christchurch relief efforts at a benefit in Vermont in the United States, August 3.

Rt Hon Mike Moore, New Zealand Ambassador to the United States, attended as a guest of honour. The visit to Vermont and New Hampshire was part of a swing through key states to promote New Zealand trade intents, especially the Trans Pacific Partnership trade deal that's currently under negotiation.

"We are unbelievably well served by Honorary Consuls who got me appointments with Governors, State Secretaries of State, and agricultural experts," said Ambassador Moore.

The evening featured a special screening of the film "Boy" by New Zealand film director Taika Waititi.

"I didn't expect the humour would travel so well," said Ambassador Moore, "but it did".

Also in attendance was Jerry of "Ben & Jerry's Homemade Ice Cream" fame, who was on hand serving ice-cream to attendees, the Mayor of Burlington, Vermont Bob Kiss, and Tom Peters, co-author of famed best-seller, "In Search of Excellence". Ambassador Moore was surprised to learn that Mr Peters has a property in the South Island.

"American generosity and continued support is indicative of the close ties the two countries have," said Ambassador Moore.

The United States is the biggest source of overseas donations to the Earthquake Appeal fund. Ambassador Moore said he was pleased to see that people had not forgotten about Christchurch, and that he was inspired about how many times he heard the words, "What can I do to help?" from people across North America.

Renowned earthquake engineer's passing a great loss to science community

IRL Chief Executive Shaun Coffey today acknowledged the contribution of world-renowned earthquake engineer and inventor of the base isolation technique Dr Bill Robinson QSO, FRSNZ, who passed away this week.

The seismic protection and damping equipment developed by Dr Robinson is used in buildings located in some of the world's most seismically active areas such as California and Japan. In New Zealand it protects several high-profile buildings including the Museum of New Zealand - Te Papa Tongarewa.

"Bill Robinson's work has saved innumerable lives," Shaun Coffey says. "The technology he invented and developed has been deployed in what is estimated to be worth over US$100 billion worth of buildings and structures throughout the world."

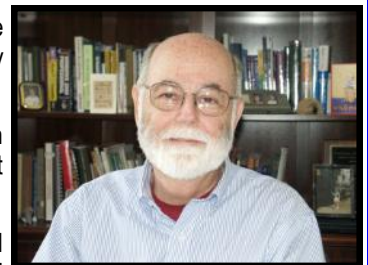

The rubber-lead bearings he invented while employed at IRL's predecessor organisation, the DSIR, have been tested by some of the world's strongest magnitude earthquakes over the last few decades including the 1994 Los Angeles earthquake and 1995 Kobe Earthquake in Japan.

Perhaps the most notable success of the rubber-lead bearing system was during the 1994 Los Angeles Earthquake when it protected the University of Southern California Teaching Hospital while several other hospitals in the vicinity were evacuated due to the level of damage they sustained.

"Bill Robinson was a total inspiration in his approach to research and the application of science and engineering. Many current and former IRL staff have fond memories of working with him, and he has been described as passionate, humorous and loyal by those who knew him well," Shaun Coffey says.

Dr Robinson was a former Director of the DSIR's Physics and Engineering Lab and the subsequent Physical Sciences division of DSIR. He was awarded the Cooper Medal in 1994 and New Zealand's top science and technology honour, the Rutherford Medal, in 1998. He was also very active in Antarctic Research for many years.

In 1995 he founded Lower Hutt-based Robinson Seismic Ltd, which is recognised around the globe as a leading innovator in seismic protection and damping devices.

United's first Boeing 787 has started assembly at Boeing's Everett, Washington facility. The new United will be the first North American carrier to fly the 787, continuing both United's and Continental's history of aviation leadership. This first aircraft will be one of six delivered in 2012, of a total fleet of 50. The 787's revolutionary aerodynamic design will allow it to fly farther, faster and more efficiently and it will provide an approximate 20 percent increase in operating efficiency over the Boeing 767 which it replaces. United's cabin configuration comprises 36 flat-bed Business Class seats, 63 seats in Economy Plus and 120 seats in Economy. The 767's were launched in 1982. The first Boeing 787 off the production line will be delivered to launch customer ANA of Japan this month.

Luggage allowances change - The Piece Concept has been introduced across the Lufthansa Group and the new baggage allowance is also harmonised with United / Continental and Air Canada. The free baggage allowance is 1 x 23kg in economy class, 2 x 32 kg in business class and 3 x 32 kg in first class. Qantas remains the only airline offering Economy Class travellers 2 pieces at 23kg each between New Zealand and the US.

ECO-Auger seeking funding

Michael McNamara has been in the U.S. the past two months getting our larger hydrokinetic energy system ready for a pilot project in the Wairua Power Station Water Supply Canal in Hikurangi, in collaboration with Northpower.

We are very close to bringing the system down to New Zealand and are still seeking funding to help us with the installation and testing of the system to generate electricity.

We welcome any thoughts you may have to those individuals and entities that could assist us financially with the implementation of the project. www.eco-auger.com

TAXATION

What in the world is the Alternative Minimum Tax?

By Gina Wallace, Director of NZ US Tax Specialists Ltd gina@nzustax.com

If the words 'voodoo' or 'witchcraft' come to mind – you are probably not far off.

The Alternative Minimum Tax (AMT) adds a layer of complexity to United States Federal income taxation that is not a) well-understood and b) frequently bewildering.

In context, Federal taxation can be classified in to two categories – the regular income tax and the AMT. A taxpayer's income tax liability (tax on taxable income before tax credits) is the greater of the two categories.

In its simplest form, AMT is exactly what the name suggests – an alternative tax calculation prescribing a minimum tax liability. It is performed by applying a separate set of rules to those that apply to the regular income tax calculation, resulting in a series of adjustments being made to regular taxable income.

Application

AMT applies to individuals (United States citizens, Resident Aliens and Non-Resident Aliens), partners in a partnership, shareholders in an S-corporation, trusts, estates and C-corporations. Only those C-corporations with more than an average of US $5m in annual gross receipts for the previous 3-year period, and those that are not Qualified Small Business Corporations must calculate AMT.

The calculation

Separate rules apply to the way in which the AMT is calculated, depending on whether the taxpayer is an individual, a corporation or other type of entity. AMT for trusts and estates is calculated using the rules that apply to individuals.

Adjustments for individuals are classed as either preference adjustments (items that generate tax savings by reducing taxable income), or timing adjustments (items that generate tax savings through accelerated deductions or deferral of income).

Personal exemptions, the standard deduction and some itemized deductions must be added back to the regular taxable income. Some of the more common add-backs may include an adjustment to qualified home mortgage interest, medical expenses that are less than 10% of Adjusted Gross Income and State, local and foreign tax payments.

Another frequent adjustment that can arise is to the amount of depreciation allowable under the AMT calculation.

Adjustments may include an add-back of accelerated depreciation or amortization over the straight line amount on assets purchased pre-1987, or recalculation under the less favourable system, the Alternative Depreciation System, for assets purchased after 1986 and before 1999.

Only one tax credit is allowable under the AMT calculation – the Foreign Tax Credit (FTC).

As such there can be an AMT FTC. In the same fashion, a taxpayer can have an AMT Net Operating Loss (AMT NOL). Accordingly many of the concepts are mirrored in the AMT calculation, albeit calculated differently.

Once the AMTI (AMT Income) has been calculated, an exemption is applied. The amount will vary depending on the filing category. For individuals the exemption ranged from US $36,225 (Married Filing Separate) and US $72,450 (Married Filing Jointly) for 2010.
